

FALL-SINCLAIR JURY CHOSEN

Two Pretty Women and Ten Men Seated In Conspiracy Trial

Owen J. Roberts, of Federal Counsel, After Day and Half of Intensive Examination of Veniremen, Launches Into Opening Address, in Which he Outlines Government's Case.

GOVERNMENT AND DEFENSE ACCEPT JURORS AFTER QUESTIONING 40

Besides Attractive Store Employee and Telephone Instructor, Three Salesmen, Store Manager, Leather Worker, Route Supervisor, Retired Bricklayer and Three Men Qualify.

By GEORGE E. DURNO.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Two attractive young women and ten men of mature age will determine the fate of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, on trial for criminal conspiracy to defraud the government of naval oil reserves.

After a day and a half of intensive examination of veniremen, forty of whom were questioned, government and defense announced satisfaction and Owen J. Roberts, of federal counsel, launched into his opening address in which he outlined the nature of the government's case.

On the jury, in addition to Mrs. Anna Bailey and Miss Bernice Heaton, respectively piano store employee and long distance telephone instructor, are an auto saleswoman, a department store floor manager, a leather worker, a route supervisor, a retired bricklayer, a cable splicer, an ice company sales agent, a tire salesman, a tailor and a clerk.

Jury's Average Age Is 40.

As against the Fall-Doherty "boy jury", the present jury presents an average age of 40. The youngest is Gardner Greenleaf, an electric cable splicer, who is 26. The oldest is Charles Holt, 63, retired bricklayer. The young ladies, one would judge, are between 25 and 30.

Three bald heads are in the box and one man with grey hair. No move was made by the government to have them locked up.

Roberts went into detail to familiarize the jury with the case he hopes to prove.

He told how Sinclair went to Fall's ranch at Three Rivers, New Mexico, and asked how he could get a lease on Teapot Dome, and "How Fall immediately got active."

"There was no competition in the letting of Teapot Dome," said Roberts, "although there were several other interests who wanted the lease. It was a personal transaction between Sinclair and Fall."

Capacity Crowd in Courtroom. Full page picture displays and many columns of print in the local papers concerning the opening proceedings of the trial drew a capacity crowd to Justice Siddons' tiny court room today for the second day of the proceedings.

Fall appeared five minutes early, dispelling fears that a bad cough and cold might have kept him in bed. Last night it was reported he had run a temperature and was under a doctor's care. For some time, according to his lawyers, Fall has suffered from congestion of the right lung.

GOSSIP CENTERS ABOUT PRINCESS

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Gossip at Bucharest continues to center about the Princess Helena, youngest daughter of Queen Marie and the late King Ferdinand, of Roumania, and her supposed love affair with Naval Commander Paulus, a 35-year-old man.

Following reports that the 18-year-old princess had eloped with Naval Commander Paulus, which was officially denied, another sensational report (which was also formally denied) came from Bucharest today that the princess tried to commit suicide in Sinai palace because her love affair with the dashing naval officer had been balked by her mother.

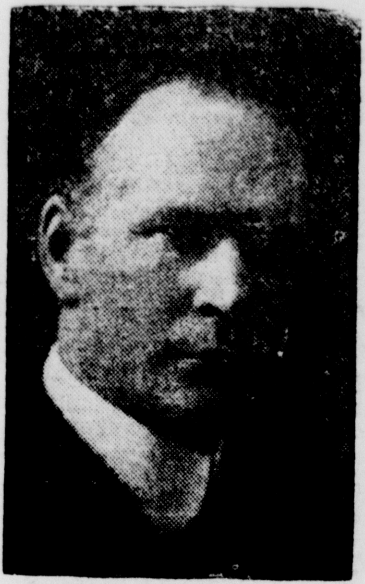

According to the latest rumors in Bucharest, which were received here in private dispatches to avoid the Roumanian censorship, Helena had been held virtually a prisoner in the place.

STORM DELAYS GRAYSON PLANE TAKE-OFF ON OCEAN FLIGHT

Disagreement With Navigator Also Factor in Postponement.

ADVERSE WINDS

"The Dawn" May Hop at Low Tide Tomorrow.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Oct. 18.—Adverse winds along the shore, coupled with a disagreement over the question of the lifting power of the trans-Atlantic plane "The Dawn," caused Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson today again to postpone the take-off for Copenhagen, Denmark.

"The Dawn" may hop tomorrow forenoon, she said.

In the take-off yesterday "The Dawn" was down by the nose because of an unbalanced load and had to return. Mrs. Grayson today was insisting on another load test with Navigator Bruce Goldsborough objecting on the ground of unnecessary delay.

Pilot Wilmer L. Sultz, who will guide the ship, was non-committal, only insisting apparently that he have a south, southeast or southwest for the take-off.

Determined to Make Trip. The disagreement between Mrs. Grayson and her navigator broke out in a local hotel while they were studying weather reports from steamships at sea.

"I'm going to make this trip regardless of what happens," said Mrs. Grayson, "I've worked more than a month on this flight and I'm going through with it in every detail."

The crew of the Sikorsky Airplane company worked all night in equalizing the load. All was ready for a take-off today.

Weather reports today, although showing a strong northeast wind on the coast, noted clear weather over the Atlantic with visibility the best in some days.

Woman Refuses to be Hurried. Navigator Goldsborough, it was learned, was for an immediate hop with the low tide around 11 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Grayson raised the question of another load test. She wanted to lighten the load of "The Dawn" further and make another test flight.

"That means that all we have done will have to be done all over," Goldsborough exclaimed, it was learned.

Kincaid (T. Harold Kincaid, noted expert) wouldn't have given the odds his o. k. if they weren't all right.

Ten Mrs. Grayson gave her ultimatum that she was going to Copenhagen, at that she would not start until every detail was checked up. That she would not be hurried by two impatient men.

Weather Bureau Warning.

BOZON, Oct. 18.—A northeast storm at settled down over the New England coast today probably will delay the take-off of the Francis Willard.

CROESUS FEEDS BRITISH RATS

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Rats and mice eat $500,000,000 worth of food in the British Isles every year, according to Sir Thomas Hilder, physician to King George. In an address to the college of pestology Sir Thomas gave the following explanation as to how the computation was made: "It is computed that there are as many rats in Great Britain as there are human beings, which is about 44,000,000. Each rat eats two cents worth of food per day or $8,000,000, 100 cent per day, which is equal to around $330,000,000 per annum. A mouse, it is computed eats one cent's worth of food per day. Assuming that there are about the same number of mice as rats, the total of $170,000,000 would be eaten annually by the mice."

SEEK MEMBERS FOR RED CROSS

Roll Call Plans to be Outlined October 27.

A quota of 1,500 members has been assigned for East Liverpool in the annual Red Cross Roll Call campaign, opening November 11, Armistice Day, and closing November 24, Thanksgiving Day, R. A. H. O'Brien, chairman of the local chapter, announced today. Plans of the campaign will be discussed at a meeting of the local executive committee and other workers, which will be held in the Carnegie library, at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening, October 27.

Every church in the city including those of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faith, has been asked to send at least five representatives to this session. A roll call chairman and three leaders in the membership drive, in all probability, will be selected at this meeting.

Approximately $1,100 was collected here in last year's membership campaign. Funds were used to meet the salary of the Red Cross in paying the salary of the public health nurse, who works under the direction of the board of health.

Rev. Mr. O'Brien attended a recent meeting in Washington when the Red Cross roll call campaign was discussed. An effort will be made to enroll 5,000, 600 members in the organization during the 1927 campaign.

Today

Wise Mr. Giannini.

All Depends on Men.

Mr. Ford's Rubber Trees.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of the Review-Tribune.)

THE Los Angeles Examiner says Mr. Giannini's Bank of Italy is now the world's largest financial institution, in capital and surplus, government institutions, only, excepted.

The Giannini bank, and its allied corporation, holder of gigantic assets, the Bancitaly, interest high finance. It would like to know how so big a concern could be built in California, far from Wall Street and the "money center." Here is a partial answer.

A. P. GIANNINI, starting just after the San Francisco fire, created his own precedents and traditions, being mercifully free from some of the old ones.

When the fire made timid financial gentlemen draw into their shells, Giannini made the loans they would not make. In 1907, when, when some bankers would not lend at any interest rate, Giannini advertised for good borrowers.

UNLIKE some bankers, he did not feel that the only time to lend is when money is not especially needed.

He had confidence in American properties and bought for his institution tens of thousands of shares of New York Central. Next to George F. Baker, Bancitaly is the largest holder of New York Central stock. He bought 200,000 shares of Standard Oil of California, which is like buying acreage in Simbad's Valley of Diamonds, bought Standard Oil of New Jersey and large blocks of stock in the National City Bank of New York and other great concerns. And his company is the largest holder of United States government bonds.

ALL that was good and sound, but only the least part of Mr. Giannini's success. He understands the value of men and the importance of having them interested in their work.

When he bought up and absorbed scores of financial institutions he kept the good men in them and showed them how to make more money, with the Bank of Italy back of them. More money for the bank, more for THEMSELVES.

AND let other "big men" observe this: HE GIVES THE EMPLOYEES IN HIS INSTITUTION FORTY PER CENT OF ALL THE PROFITS. His sound belief is that with every man in the organization deeply interested stockholders will not make more profit from 60 per cent of the earnings than they would from 100 per cent under the old methods.

THE original Giannini stock has risen from one share to one thousand dollars a share. Mr. Giannini cautions the public against over-speculation in his stock, and you are

MAY OPEN STATE LINE HIGHWAY BEFORE NOV. 1

Allison-Harris Company, in Charge, Speeds Work.

26 MEN ON JOB

Lincoln Highway Building Detours Traffic Over Old Link.

Elimination of two grade crossings on the Midland road, both of which are considered hazardous to highway traffic will be completed within ten days or two weeks, when a stretch of new concrete road at Smith's Ferry is opened to travel.

The new highway will eliminate grade crossings over the tracks of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company and the Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad. Cement curbs on each side of the road are now being built.

Building the highway involved re-locating nearly a mile of roadway 200 feet north from the old bed.

Capacity Crowd Greet Chicago Stock Company

"Laff That Off," Comedy, Opening Week's Engagement of New York Successes at Ceramic, Proves Hit.

Judging from the enthusiasm with which a capacity house last night greeted the Chicago Stock company's offering, "Laff That Off," a comedy with a war background, staged by Charles H. Roskam, through special permission of Earl Carroll, the Ceramic theatre will be crowded to the doors at matinee and evening performances during the week's engagement. Seldom, if ever, have East Liverpool theatre-goers had the privilege of attending a stage offering presented by a repertoire cast as well balanced as the company organized for the 1927-28 season by Mr. Roskam. The manner in which they delineated the roles in Don Mullaly's story last night proved that Ceramic patrons have real treats in store for them today, tomorrow, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, when other New York successes will be featured.

"Laff That Off," in which W. James Bedell and pretty Peggy Martin essayed the leads, was a delightful vehicle for the portrayal of the talents of the two as well as their supporting cast, which included Edmund Moses, Fred Beaudoin, William McCarthy, Dorothy Burris, Charles W. Hiser, Rae Mack, Jean White and George M. Bradley.

The Chicago Stock company, which came to East Liverpool following long runs in Altoona, Pa., and Utica, N. Y., needs no introduction to the people of the pottery center of America. Their reception here in bygone years has established them as favorites with the theatre-goers, and is a safe prediction that the S. R. O. sign will be displayed at the Ceramic box office during the remainder of the week. This afternoon and tonight, the company will present the Klaw theatre hit of last year, "Sinner," turning the searchlight of truth on the trouble with most modern marriages. Productions for other days of the engagement include:

Wednesday matinee and evening—"How Women Ruin Men." Avery Hopwood's latest comedy hit. A play dealing with modern problems in a modern way. A story that sends the audience home thinking.

Thursday matinee and evening—"The Cat and the Canary." The most exciting play ever written. A mystery thriller that you'll enjoy even better than "The Gorilla" or "The Bat."

Friday matinee and evening—To be announced. Saturday matinee and evening—"Naughty Cinderella." Miss Irene Bordoni's starring success of last season. A two-hour trip across the Atlantic to France's famous summer resorts with a guaranteed case of smiles and laugh hysteria for every passenger.

Warm Comfort in Every Room With the Improved Anchor Hot-Blast COAL HEATER

Wherever heating stoves are used the Anchor Hot Blast proves its superiority—proves that in down-right efficiency, in convenience, in actual economy, it is without an equal.

This superiority is not an accident, but is the result of many years of practical and scientific heating stove manufacture and practical tests.

The Anchor Hot Blast will burn any fuel—hard coal, soft coal, lignite, wood or coke, giving a uniform heat under perfect control, and slow economical combustion. Because of the hot-blast feature, the gases from soft coal are completely burned, making a ton of soft coal equal to a ton or more of expensive hard coal.

Careful attention has been applied to every detail of construction. And it is mounted absolutely air-tight and remains air-tight, because these details have been perfected and made practical.

In addition to a fine appearance that will last the life of the stove, the Anchor Hot Blast offers real home comfort and a saving of 25 per cent on your fuel bill.

Study these construction features. Know that your Anchor Hot Blast will save its cost out of the coal bin and pay dividends for years to come in warm home comfort and satisfaction.

The Improved Anchor Hot Blast Has No Equal

More than a thousand of them are in use in this vicinity and we have yet to hear of a purchaser who was not more than satisfied.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1927.

Fire Department Tax Levy

A proposed one-mill tax levy for fire department purposes will be submitted to the electors of East Liverpool on Tuesday, November 8.

The additional millage is needed in order to increase the strength of the city's fire fighting force, now undermanned, from 13 to 28 men, as recommended by the national board of fire underwriters.

Soaring fire losses within the last two years have prompted the withdrawal of several companies from the East Liverpool field, while others have increased rates on their risks.

Insurance companies have warned that additional premiums shall be demanded here unless the department is brought up to the strength that prevailed several years ago. In the interim, nine men were dropped from the payroll because of lack of funds in the city treasury.

In other words, electors, three weeks from today, will pass judgment on the question of a one-mill tax levy or higher insurance rates. And the sensible move, both from a protection standpoint as well as in the interest of economy, should be approval of the proposed levy.

Vote for the tax levy.

A Murderer's Mind

Scientists have been bidding for the brain of Russell Scott, financial wizard once honored by the world, latterly crook and murderer, now suicide. They want to examine it and see what it tells to explain the mysteries of Scott's strange personality and career.

It may tell them something, but probably not. There will be plenty of convolutions, no doubt, showing an extensive "cerebral cortex," rich in the cells associated with thinking power. It must be a complex brain, matching the complex character of its possessor. But as a key to moral character a brain seldom reveals much. It might, if man knew how to read it; but the brain, most wonderful organ in the body, is little known as yet. Scott's face might tell more. The intuitive perception of a natural student of character might tell more.

We forget sometimes that brain is one thing and mind another. Brain is merely the instrument of mind. There must be a rough parallelism—certain parts of the brain corresponding to certain faculties of mind. But even that is not clear.

It is inconceivable that brain should operate without mind to direct it. Materialists question whether there is any mind from matter, capable of thinking and acting without a brain. Most of us believe there is. But the doctors and laboratory psychologists cannot tell much about that by dissecting the brain—their scalpels and microscopes tell them nothing.

Shakespeare, who dissected minds, would have understood Scott.

Illiterate Jurors

It was announced, as preparations were confided for bringing the Fall-Sinclair case to trial in the criminal court at Washington, that the defense would insist on a panel of jurors who could not read. This, it was explained, was intended to insure that the jurors would not be prejudiced against the defendants by previous familiarity with the case.

Whatever the reasons for such an attitude, it is surely a curious thing when a country which boasts itself the most enlightened in the world should show a preference for illiterate juries. And in the national capital, too. What would George Washington, for whom the city was named, think about this?

A man has to be pretty dumb, in this generation, to grow up without knowing how to read. If he doesn't know what has been in the papers, it isn't likely that he knows much of anything else.

Juries of illiterates in a land where education is so highly esteemed and so lavishly paid for would be a joke, if it were not so tragic.

Here is a case interesting every intelligent citizen in the country, taking years of preparation, costing an enormous sum of money and involving important principles of public and private conduct. The stage for it is elaborately set. And then it is to be entrusted to a dozen illiterates for decision!

It might be laid down as a general principle that there ought to be federal and state laws insuring that no illiterate should be eligible for jury service.

21 Guns For a Girl

Alas for feminine equality in Belgium! When King Albert's grandchild was born the other day the gunners were waiting to fire a royal salute. When the booming started, citizens listened eagerly. The salute ended with 21 guns and everybody knew that Astrid and Leopold had a daughter. A boy, as heir to the throne, would have had more than five times as long as a salute.

We suspect that this tiny addition to the Belgian royal family doesn't mind and never will mind much that her salute was so brief. Princesses with no heavy state responsibilities ahead of them are a lot better off in these days than princes.

Simple spelling is all right, but every time the Literary Digest prints "discut" it suggests disgust.

The American people may not have made so much money this year, but they've been able to borrow 13 per cent more than ever before on real estate, so they feel richer.

A Golfer Will Try Anything—

By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—New York is reputed to have the most extravagant men and women in the world. Proficiency reaches highest peak chiefly among the newly rich. Exclusive hostelry shops have women patrons who buy silk stockings to be worn once and thrown aside.

A gentleman who cleaned up in General Motors in the market frequently orders a smart dinner at several restaurants and permits guests to select the one at which they choose to dine when they arrive. Other dinners are paid for but not eaten.

A theatrical manager who once managed a strong man has six imported cars he never drives. Many florists have standing orders to supply flowers every day in the year at homes whose occupants are only in town several months in the year. The custom of having a chauffeur in reserve is common.

He is on the regular payroll but sits at the wheel on few occasions when a regular chauffeur is unable to work. Season boxes at the opera are purchased at astounding figures and frequently not occupied by purchasers more than once or twice a year. They want the publicity.

Many ladies buy so many frocks that some come only be worn once or twice and some not at all. Millinery is bought in a like manner. In reducing the allowance of a 20-year-old son, who married against his wishes, to $5,000 a year, a millionaire recently admitted the usual allowance was $25,000 annually.

At the sell-off shows nightly a block of seats will often be unoccupied as a result of the host or hostess ordering them through an agency and then deciding to take the guests elsewhere. And there is one instance of the entire first five rows being purchased at a musical revue but the guests became so beautifully bloated they could not attend.

This waste, of course, is confined almost entirely to the "come easy, go easy" natives, who make it quickly. Very few of the richest, however, can stand the pace for long and the end is summed up in a fleeting few lines in news of the bankruptcy courts.

Broadway has illuminating examples of the inevitable fate of the wastrel. There are several doormen, waiters and such once tagged as "good fellows" when they had it, and somehow they usually want to remain, even though obscurely, in the glare that once beckoned.

Abe Martin Says:

The only combination in the interest of the plain people is sauerkraut and spareribs. World peace sounds like a mighty ridiculous undertaking to the average family man.

oned. Formerly opulent, they are now glenners along the way that is white.

One of the picturesque Broadway spenders of about 19 years ago was a young man who made his fortune as a junk dealer. When the car came along he trebled his wealth and plunged deeper into dissipation. He finished up in a wheel chair—a wreck physically and financially—selling lead pencils and around his neck was a placard: "From junk to junk."

And in the memoirs of one of those millionaire kids who flash intermittently across the Dazzling Dais was this line: "I began on imported caviar at Rector's and wound up on home-made hash at Beefsteak Joe's."

A soundproof apartment house for bachelors has a line in its advertising matter that offers the ultimate in latrines. It reads: "Our only restriction is to be as quiet as possible of nights passing through hallways." And this is likely a mere consideration for the night watchmen.

There used to be a foolish rule in hotels that one could not permit mixed guests in a single room—but with an adjoining parlor the restriction was removed. Smart and exclusive hotels select guests carefully and if they have a single room it is their privilege to receive whom they please under natural assumption that all patrons are ladies and gentlemen. That is as it should be. The idea of not permitting a mother, for instance, to visit her collegiate son in his hotel room—and this has happened—is rank impertinence.

Hotels can often make more silly rules than professional lawmakers. Copyright, 1927, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Paying The National Debt.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 18.—It is doubtful whether any President of the United States ever has made a more sweeping and yet more concise statement of national policy than that uttered by President Coolidge recently. He said, in effect, that the United States had one policy which included the principal subordinate issues. That policy is the reduction of the national debt as rapidly as possible.

His statement of policy was evoked by the visits of returning Senators and Representatives in Congress. They, it appears, have called upon the President and laid before him various schemes for legislation, nearly all of them embodying provisions for substantial expenditures of public money. There were many plans for flood control, for a great variety of public works—irrigation projects, reclamation projects, power projects, construction of post offices, Federal buildings—and a great variety of other proposals. Many of them the President deemed meritorious, but he made it clear that he does not regard this as the proper time for spending money unless the expenditure is absolutely necessary.

It seems quite likely that Congress will make some appropriations in connection with flood control. Perhaps his will be no more than a small sum, relatively, for the expense of a commission to study the problem.

There is one thing, however, which is regarded by many capital observers as a certainty—the President will discourage and, if necessary, veto, any legislation pouring out huge sums.

Mr. Coolidge is peculiarly situated in that respect. He has elected not to be a candidate to succeed himself in 1928 and therefore he has no political axe to grind. While the days of the politician pork barrel are fairly well past—at least so far as the Republican administrations of recent years have been concerned—a President who expects to remain in the political ring must keep his fences in repair and assist supporters in obtaining post office buildings, Federal court-houses, and the like, in their home jurisdictions. Mr. Coolidge is free of all such trammels. He can put his foot down flatly against them with none to threaten or gainsay him. Nothing short of death or impeachment can remove him from the office from which he plans to retire at the expiration of his term.

Paying Debt Is Preparedness.

The comprehensiveness of the President's policy for the remainder of his administration does not, perhaps, appear on its face. But he explains that debt reduction includes the two major policies which any intelligent administration must support, namely, internal improvements and national defense.

How, he asks, can a nation consider itself safe from aggression or properly able to take the offensive in a just cause, if its people are burdened with a national debt? With a heavy debt hanging over them on entering a war, the people must take on a fresh burden with an old one still bowing their backs. The surest bulwark, he points out, is freedom from debt so that the monetary sinews of a defensive or offensive war may come from an untouched source.

One reason why the United States was able to be of such aid to the Allies in the World War was that it entered the struggle almost clear of debt. The per capita indebtedness of France when she declared war on Germany was in the neighborhood of $175, whereas that of the United States was only about $11. After the Civil War in this country, the Union was burdened by a heavy debt, but it became the policy to pay this off as rapidly as possible. This was done and, if Mr. Coolidge's policy is pursued, the national debt which arose out of the World War soon will be discharged. With a clear slate no nation in the world could begin to compete with us in a race to build warships, airplanes, or any other type of military equipment. So, says Mr. Coolidge, debt retirement is the best national defense policy.

Internal improvements have always been an important issue in American politics. In fact, Andrew Jackson found it by far the outstanding issue. Here again Mr. Coolidge finds that debt retirement is the shortest cut to put the nation in the best shape to make internal improvements. He has invited attention to the fact that the interest the Government is paying on the debt in a single year would more than equal the enormous damage caused by the flood which devastated the entire Mississippi Basin last spring and summer.

What Might Be Done.

The money paid out in interest, irrespective of any retirement of bonds, could be diverted, after the debt is retired, to some vast engineering work which might, for all time, prevent the enormous loss of life and property from river floods in the United States. Funds would be available for roads and for reclaiming the deserts, for investigating and eradicating insect pests which annually destroy food to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars. Scientific work could be carried on on a tremendous scale and, perhaps most interesting of all, taxes could be reduced to a minimum. The income tax would fall only on the very large incomes and many nuisance taxes could be abolished entirely. All this in the way of internal improvement and the saving of money to the people would come about because the hundreds of millions now paid out in interest on the national debt would no longer be required.

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

CHAPTER XXXV.

At half past ten that night, Sally had everything in readiness for her father's home-coming.

A lunch of cold baked ham and bread and butter was laid for him on the dining room table. The coffee pot bubbled cheerily over a low fire on the stove in Sally's spotless kitchen.

She had carried all of Millie's fancy, frilly things out of the room that once had belonged to Beau, and stowed them away in the room that she and Millie had shared for so many years.

There was clean linen on the bed where her father was to sleep, and a match-box and ash-tray on the table beside it.

Thus, in her own small way, Sally had prepared a welcome for him.

Mrs. Jerome, too, had made preparations for his coming. She had waved her plentiful hair and put on her best dress of gray silk.

"It's five years old, but your father has never seen it," she twittered, while Sally looked her into it.

"Dear me, I hope he won't find me too changed. . . . But, so far as that goes, he'll be nine years older, himself."

Sally could remember her father only dimly. Her most vivid recollection of him was of an afternoon when he had taken her to the circus.

She had been only 7 years old at the time, but she still could remember how she had clung to him with her hot, damp little hand, in terror, when the lion had roared—and how he had bought her peanuts and popcorn and the most beautiful pink shiny yellow straw in it.

And she could remember that he had worn a blue suit and a straw hat with a colored band around it, and had laughed a great deal, and held her high on his shoulder as he pushed his way through the crowd after the circus.

It was that memory of him that she had held and loved for 13 years, and she still expected him to be young and gay and strong.

"I can hardly wait to see him," she said when she and her mother

sat waiting for him in the sitting room. "Wouldn't it be nice if he decided to stay with us and never go away again?"

Mrs. Jerome, still pink and fluttering, did not answer.

"That reminds me," Sally went on, carrying the begonia from the dining room to the center of the library table against the back wall of the sitting room, "Beau and Mabel want to come home to live. They say they just can't keep up a place of their own, and Mabel doesn't know how to cook and she's too tired after a day in the office to look after a home."

"Tired? What makes her tired, I'd like to know!" cried Mrs. Jerome, indignantly. "What does she do but sit at a typewriter and move her fingers all day? That's not work. That's play."

Mrs. Jerome had never touched a typewriter in her life, but she was quite sure that to run one was child's play—and she often said so.

"It would be nice to have Beau at home again, though," she added, wistfully. "I'd almost put up with Mabel just to have him around again." She adored Beau as a mother always adores her only son. In her eyes he was perfect—a knight, a gentleman, and a young god. He could do no wrong.

"I don't know how it will work out," Sally told her. "They're going to mean a lot of extra work."

"Oh, the work will take care of itself," replied Mrs. Jerome, easily. She had always let work do that very thing. Work had been the least of her troubles.

"They'll have to pay their board, too!" Sally declared firmly. "And right on the dot, too, every Saturday night. Otherwise we may just as well pack up and move right into the poor house now!"

Mrs. Jerome looked reproachfully at her with large, round, blinking eyes. "Sally, you talk as if you didn't want your father here at home," she said sadly. "You talk as if he weren't welcome here."

Then she started up from her arm chair and looked out of the window. "Here they are!" she cried, and the sound of a chugging motor came faintly up from the street.

There were slow footsteps on the stairs outside, and Sally's father came walking back into her life.

He was not at all like the father she remembered. There was nothing to even suggest that father.

There was nothing gay and strong and young about him now. He was dressed in a gray suit, and his eyes and hair were gray, too. He was not nearly so tall as Beau, who towered behind him. And he was quiet—at most timid—in his manner.

"Clara Margareta," he said softly, and actually held out his hand to the woman who had been his wife for almost a quarter of a century. There was no affection—and no lingering resentment—in his manner to her. He was, as the sharp-tongued Mabel remarked later, as polite as a floor-walker.

She winked now at Sally, and shifted her tongue from one cheek to the other. She was enjoying all this, hugely.

"Yes, Papa," answered Mrs. Jerome, who had colored up like a girl, but had never moved from her place by the window. It was plain that she did not know how to greet this gray, middle-aged man who had been a forceful young husband when he had banged the door of that very flat violently behind him nine years before.

It was Sally who saved the day. She ran across the room and threw her arms around her father's shoulders and kissed his dry, wrinkled cheeks. She tried to keep remembering the day he had taken her to the circus.

"We're so glad you came!" she cried. "And there's some coffee for you! Where's your bag? Put it in Millie's room, Beau. Your old room, you know."

Talking and laughing, she got then all into the dining room and around the table. She poured coffee and passed food and did her best to get things going. To break the ice.

But a pall seemed to have settled down over the house. Even Mabel's light laughter sounded mirthless, and Beau looked from his silent father to his silent mother with puzzled, questioning eyes, and hardly spoke.

At half past eleven he and Mabel went home in their temperamental car, and the rest of the family went to bed.

Sally kissed her father good night, but Mrs. Jerome did not. And when Sally tiptoed into her room a half hour later with her glass of warm milk she was sitting straight up in bed, staring into space.

"He's just like he used to be—hard and cold and mean," she said, as if she were talking to herself. "I'm sorry I sent for him. He took his time about getting here, anyway. And Millie doesn't need him now."

Then, with a sigh, she took her milk from Sally's hand and picked up her latest novel—"The Princess Dagmar"—from the table beside her wide, deep, soft bed.

"Well, thank goodness, I have you left, Sally," she said. "You'll never leave me, will you?"

Sally's kiss was a promise. "Not unless you want me to, dear," she answered.

The next morning Sally was up at five, like the little pig in the fairy tale.

Haskin's Letter

The country is interested in building up the merchant marine and President Coolidge, himself, has shown an especial interest in such a project. If it seemed wise, Congress could vote a subsidy for this purpose which would be but the traditional drop in the bucket compared to the interest it now is paying on the national debt. An American merchant marine would contribute both to national defense and internal welfare. From the point of view of national defense, it would prove useful in transport service and from the point of view of internal welfare, it would foster American foreign trade, thereby bringing greater prosperity to American producers.

It may be noted further that internal improvements by private enterprise will be greatly stimulated as the result of the policy of debt retirement. First, funds which have been tied up in government securities will be released for investment in productive enterprises. New factories will rise and new industries flourish. There will be ample employment at good wages. Second, the concomitant tax reduction will encourage business men to proceed with plans which have been held in abeyance awaiting lower rates. Perhaps it is just a chapter in the irony of politics that a public man finds himself equipped with an ideal policy and platform just at the time when he is not a candidate for anything.

WHAT A Rexall ONE CENT SALE IS

It is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price, then another item of the same kind for one cent. As an illustration: The standard price of Klenzo Dental Creme is 50c, you buy a tube at this price and by paying 1 cent more, or 51 cents, you get two tubes. Every article in this sale is a high class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as is sold every day at the regular price.

This sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full size package of high standard merchandise for 1 cent. It costs money to get new customers, but the sacrifice in profit is justified, knowing the goods will please you.

Storm Delays

(Continued from Page One) son Grayson plane from Old Orchard Beach, Maine, to Copenhagen, Denmark, until Thursday, the weather bureau here believed today. The storm will take 24 hours to move up from the circle over which Mrs. Grayson plans to fly. If she hops tomorrow she takes a chance of encountering three to five hundred miles of strong head winds, the weather bureau said. Charles Lindbergh, the weather expert pointed out, went across ahead of a storm rather than behind it. Heinkel Seaplane at Lisbon. LISBON, Oct. 18.—The German Heinkel Seaplane, D-229, arrived here at 9:45 a. m. today from Vigo, Spain. After taking on supplies Pilot Hertz Mox will take off for the Azores on his way to New York. If weather conditions are satisfactory, he will not stop at the Azores but will continue across the ocean to America. Frenchmen Plan Night Flight. RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 18.—A flight from here to Buenos Aires at night, the first of its kind, will be attempted by Diendonne Costes and Lieutenant Le Brix French aviators, who are here on a Paris-Argentina flight. The flyers announced today that they will leave for Buenos Aires at night. They were to have continued to the Argentine capital earlier in the day but altered their plans in order to participate in the funeral of the three Brazilian aviators who were killed here during the welcoming ceremonies accorded the Frenchmen. As Costes and Le Brix arrived from Caramell, Brazil, two Brazilian planes collided in the air and fell in flames. The Frenchmen joined in the attempt to rescue the fallen aviators but the flaming wreckage made rescue impossible. After reaching Buenos Aires, Costes said, he and his companion will return to Rio de Janeiro to prepare for a flight across the Andes mountains to Chile. Junker Plane at Horta. HORTA, THE AZORES, Oct. 18.—Weather permitting, the Junker hydro-airplane, D-1230, will take off across the Atlantic today for New York. The plane, which is making a flight from Germany to New York, has been held by bad weather. It is piloted by Fritz Loebe and carries as a passenger Lillis Dillenz, Viennese actress.

HAVANA AWAITS TROPICAL BLOW

Destructive Storm is Sweeping Coast of Gulf of Mexico.

HAVANA, Oct. 18.—A tropical cyclone which originated in the Caribbean sea is sweeping northward from the region of Grand Cayman island. Rev. Father Gutierrez Lanza, of the Belen school observatory, issued a warning to the people of Central Cuba to prepare for the storm today, although he said that there was no cause for undue alarm. VERA CRUZ, Oct. 1.—The most destructive storm in 30 years is sweeping the coast of the Gulf of Mexico. The storm has cyclonic proportions. Puerto, Mexico; Fronteras and Tabasco are completely flooded.

COURT UPHOLDS REFORMATORY LAW

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18.—A victory for law enforcement was the interpretation placed here today by state officials upon the decision of the United States supreme court yesterday, upholding by inference, the constitutionality of the Marysville reformatory law of Ohio. The court, by its refusal to hear an appeal in the case of Rube Fenwick, or Darke county, ruled that there was no federal question involved in the appeal. The constitutionality of the law had been attacked by attorneys who claimed that it was discriminatory, in that it provided a different punishment for a woman who violates a law than that meted out to a man committing the same offense. The Fenwick woman was convicted of assault and battery, after being originally charged with shooting with intent to kill. She was given a sentence of six months.

AUTO CLUB GAINS IN MEMBERSHIP

Report for the third quarter of the year was submitted by Secretary E. M. Diehl at a meeting of the board of directors of the Columbiana County Motor Club in the office of H. C. Armstrong, Lisbon, last night. Diehl indicated that the club's membership this year is larger than last year, with receipts showing a corresponding gain. The Columbiana County Club ranks 19th among 83 in the state from a membership standpoint.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The downward movement in the industrial and railroad stocks continued at a moderate pace at the beginning of trading today. Selling of weakly margined accounts and stocks forced on the market by stop-loss added considerably to the supply of offering and professionals did their share in forcing prices lower. Some encouragement was derived from the statements of prominent bankers and business leaders that the business "cycle" had touched the lowest point and would promptly swing upward. The prospect of a substantial reduction in federal taxes, as outlined by powerful members of the "party in power" was also a pleasing one, but without much immediate effect on the market. Call money renewed at 4 1/4 per cent, against yesterday's close at 4 per cent. Cleveland Produce. CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—Butter—Extra, 50c to 51c; firsts, 47c to 47c; packing, 28c. BLAZING LINER REACHES PORT

Crew of San Jacinto Fights Fire in Freight Hold.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 18.—With both crew and passengers fighting a raging fire in her freight hold, the Mallory line San Jacinto arrived in port here from Galveston today. The fire was discovered Sunday morning, 12 hours after the liner had cleared the Texas port. Working in shifts, the crew and passengers have since battled the flames. Bad weather encountered Sunday night and heavy seas added to the plight of the ship. With heavy black smoke pouring from her forward holds where a shipment of cotton has been stored, there was no way today to ascertain to what extent the fire has made headway. Perfect order was maintained by the passengers aboard ship, many of them joining with the crew in fighting the fire at sea.

DEFER DECISION ON LENGEL TRIAL

CANTON, O., Oct. 18.—A motion asking a new trial for Saranus A. Lengel, former police chief, sentenced to a life term in the Ohio penitentiary for complicity in the Don Mellett murder, today had been taken under advisement by the Mahoning court of appeals which heard the arguments yesterday. The defense contended that there was no evidence warranting the verdict against Lengel, and that Judge Cleveland erred in refusing to admit certain depositions into evidence and in his charge to the jury.

MCDONALD O. K'S MARSHALL BILL

Prohibition Director Fires Broadside for Proposed Law.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18.—B. F. McDonald, state prohibition director of Ohio, who had previously entered the political arena to take up the battle in behalf of the Marshall bill by instructing employees of his department to campaign for the measure, today fired another broadside for the proposed law, which will be subjected to a referendum vote in November. McDonald, in a statement made public through the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, declared that he favored adoption of the Marshall bill for three reasons. 1. Because it will aid generally in law enforcement. 2. Because its adoption is "an absolute necessity to the enforcement of law in some Ohio counties." 3. Because the law "will not only be self-sustaining, but will be revenue producing." McDonald declared that he had noted that bootleggers became "bold and defiant" immediately after Judge William Howard Taft's decision in the Tunney case, and that a still more defiant attitude was expected if the Marshall bill is voted down. The common pleas and probate courts in four counties in Ohio, McDonald declared, have informed his department that they will not hear liquor cases. The Taft decision removes the power of justice courts to hear such cases.

WOMAN IS HELD FOR SHOP LIFTING

Mrs. Mary Ross, of Wheeling, W. Va., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of shoplifting when she faced Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today. She is being held pending passing of sentence. Mrs. Ross, who says she is a widow, was arrested in Fifth street at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Norman McFarland. Affidavits against her were signed by R. J. Hamm, manager of the Metropolitan chain store, and A. B. McFadden, of the Ross store. She is alleged to have taken clothing, combs, thread, drugs and hair net valued at $5.63 from the Metropolitan store and a sweater and children's pajamas, valued at $7.36, from the Ross store. Police also alleged that she took merchandise from the Woolworth store.

MRS. M. SWANEY DIES IN HER HOME

Mrs. Minnie Swaney, wife of William Swaney, died last night in her home, 1019 Church street, after a two weeks' illness. She was a member of the Methodist Protestant church and Amity Bible class. Funeral services will be held in the home at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, in charge of Rev. D. F. Dimit. Burial will be made in Spring Grove cemetery. DETROIT MAYOR HITS DRY LAW

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 18.—"The prohibition law is a tragic joke," declared Mayor W. Smith in an open statement, made public today, in which he charged that prohibition enforcement in any large city breeds hypocrisy and corruption. The mayor's statement came as an aftermath of reports that Detroit blind pig operators were being welded into an organization to work for his re-election. Asked for a statement on the prohibition attitude of Mayor Smith, John Lodge, his opponent in the mayoralty race, flatly refused to comment.

AIR EXPRESS PARCEL ARRIVES

The first air express parcel to be received in East Liverpool since the inauguration of the service by the American Railway Express company was received here a few days ago, when the Stearns Dry Goods store, Fifth street, accepted a consignment of hats from Samuel D. Ladd and Company of New York. The package, which contained four hats displayed at the recent New York fashion show, weighed one pound and four ounces, the shipping charges being $2.50, or 62 1/2 cents per hat. The shipment left the New Brunswick, N. J., flying field in the evening and arrived here at noon on the following day. The four hats are named after places which have in recent months successfully completed the Atlantic flights. They are the "Spirit of St. Louis," "Pride of Detroit," "Columbia" and "America."

"CRYSTAL CUP" AT AMERICAN

Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall in Star Roles.

A daring drama, unusual in theme and treatment, skillfully directed and superbly acted, "The Crystal Cup," First National's picturization of Gertrude Atherton's novel, which opened last night at the American theatre, is easily one of the finest pictures seen here in many a month. "The Crystal Cup" goes into the intricate and intriguing matter of psycho-analysis and the interesting discoveries of Freud. It reflects the turbulent soul of a sensitive woman, oppressed by an unhappy experience of early youth which affects her conduct and outlook on life for years. It affords Dorothy Mackaill, featured screen role, in which the actress acquires herself so creditably as to place her in the first rank of motion picture artists. Jack Mulhall brings his likable personality and distinct histrionic ability to the serious role of "Geoffrey," in which he is featured opposite Miss Mackaill. Rockcliffe Fellowes' interpretation of the brilliant, successful novelist is a finely-drawn and carefully studied bit of acting. Jane Winton, Edythe Chapman, Clarissa Selwynne are excellent in supporting roles. To John Francis Dillon goes much of the credit for "The Crystal Cup" for his expert and finished direction. The story was produced for First National Pictures by Henry Hobart and adapted to the screen by Gerald Duffy.

Miss Margaret Hilgenberg Files Breach of Promise Suit.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—A breach of promise suit, asking $100,000 damages, was filed in federal court here today by Miss Margaret E. Hilgenberg, of Los Angeles, against Claude D. Nease, of East Liverpool, Ohio. The petition states that Miss Hilgenberg was living in East Liverpool in 1917 and that on August 2 of that year, Nease asked her to marry him and she consented. Later, after he had induced her to go to California, the petition states, she discovered that he had married. The case is said to be the first breach of promise suit ever filed in federal court here.

"FLAPPERS" ROB CLEVELAND GIRL

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—Police today were searching for four "flapper bandits" who are alleged to have robbed and beaten Miss Bernice Alekshinski, 19, Sunday night. The girl did not report the matter to police until last night. She said she was returning home alone from a dance when the young women attacked her, took her purse containing $12, threw her to the ground and beat her with their fists and then fled.

Being "Too Tired" Doesn't Pay. A healthy person never feels constantly tired. Being "too tired" continually is a sign of something wrong. Watch the kidneys. A very able physician said, "When they are affected, life is in danger." If elimination is too frequent, or too scanty and burning, take FOLEY PILLS diuretic. W. K. $250,000,000 TAX CUT LOOMS

Plan Corporation Slash and Elimination of War Levies. WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The administration's tax reduction program was outlined at the treasury department today. It contemplates a total cut of $250,000,000, about $100,000,000 less than advocated by Senate Republican leaders. Chief features are a one per cent cut of the present 13 1/2 per cent corporation tax, a slight reduction of the maximum surtax rates and elimination of practically all of the remaining war taxes. The plan will be submitted by the treasury to the house ways and means committee when it meets in October 31 to draft tax legislation.

INSANITY MAY BE REMUS' DEFENSE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—Representatives of George Remus, bootlegger, facing trial for the slaying of Imogene Holmes Remus, his wife, today were ready to start on a tour of the country for fragments of the story of Remus' wrongs at the hands of Imogene Remus and Franklin L. Dodge, department of justice agent. It is this story, to be pieced together from depositions of 69 witnesses, that Charles H. Elston, Remus' attorney, says will prove the defense contention that Remus was crazed by the persecutions of his wife and her alleged lover when he fired the fatal shot. Judge Chester R. Shook, of the Hamilton county criminal court, yesterday ruled that under the new Ohio insanity law Elston would have to present that contention today, and abide at the murder trial by the finding of a sanitary hearing to be held October 31.

STUDENTS FIGHT BAN ON HAZING

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 18.—As a protest against orders abolishing hazing, 700 students of Virginia Military Institute went on strike today. They refused to answer the morning bugle call and said they would not attend classes. The row came to a head last night at a meeting of the student body. It was called by Jack West, president. Students criticized the methods instituted by General William E. Cocke, superintendent, to abolish hazing of lower classmen. They said he had resorted to wholesale dismissals. A first year student had complained to Cocke that he was beaten up by upper classmen.

FISHER PARK property has not been on sale for two years, during which time changes have taken place which allows this splendid homesite property to go on the market at prices which are very attractive to investors and those desiring attractive home sites.

This property is now within the city limits of East Liverpool—just two miles from the shopping center, and two miles from the new Country Club.

AN IDEAL PLACE FOR A HOME

Every individual who knows Fisher Park, knows that for home comfort it is Unequaled.

In FISHER PARK you have Gas, Water and Electricity, a place of natural beauty, conveniently located, large lots 50x150, plenty of room for children to play.

In FISHER PARK you are away from the smoke and grime of the congested districts, out where you can breathe pure, fresh health building air.

The ideal building restrictions assure you of permanent desirable neighbors, a place where you can enjoy living.

EAST LIVERPOOL'S FINEST HOMESITE DEVELOPMENT

Located Within City Limits On Lincoln Highway

Home building is one of the most essential businesses in the United States today. Thousands of homes are being completed every day throughout the country. Thousands of shrewd investors are selecting locations that are properly developed and protected by reasonable restrictions in which to build homes.

The home builder today watches his building costs more carefully than he did years ago. When he makes an expenditure of money to build a home, he selects a location that will enhance the appearance and value of that home. Every dollar invested in a home in the proper location will, in due time, take on added value and reward the builder for his efforts. If he builds in a development that has all the modern improvements, where the restrictions protect him against undesirable buildings, and where the homesites are selling for a moderate amount of money—his investment is absolutely safe.

If you contemplate building a home—in a development that has been endorsed by the people of your CITY—where your investment will take on added value every day—you will build in East Liverpool's FINEST HOMESITE DEVELOPMENT—FISHER PARK.

Mr. Watson's interest in FISHER PARK has been acquired by me—this, together with the including of FISHER PARK in the city limits of East Liverpool, has brought changes that make it possible for me to place FISHER PARK lots on the market at almost one-half their former prices.

Work on water lines, surface sewers and streets will start at once.

I feel certain that anyone desiring a place to build will make no mistake in investigating FISHER PARK offerings and that in time they will reap the harvest of their investment if they buy and build in FISHER PARK.

Solons to Get Ohio Power Company 50-Year Franchise Ordinance Back Tonight.

Mayor W. L. Fogo, who recently vetoed council's ordinance extending to the Ohio Power company franchise rights for a period of 50 years, tonight will submit his reasons in detailed form when he returns the measure to solons.

What action members of council, who enacted the measure unanimously on three separate readings, may decide to take, is problematical.

They can permit the ordinance to die by terminating their connection with it, in accepting the veto ruling or, if sufficient strength is recruited, can re-enact it.

In announcing his veto Mayor Fogo briefly declared that it was the consensus of opinion of chamber of commerce members and business men that the 50-year grant was too long.

New Rule Closes O. S. U. Dances at Midnight

Co-eds Must Quit Halls of Terpsichore in Time to Sign-in at Bodes Before 12:45 a. m.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1—A new rule, providing for the closing of all dances on the Ohio State campus in time so the co-eds will be at their respective sorority and rooming houses at 12:45 a. m. is causing much discussion among the university students, men as well as women.

Where formerly fraternity and sorority dances on week-ends closed at 1 o'clock and sometimes later for formal occasions, and a period of 45 minutes was allowed for the women students to sign-in at their respective rooms, all dances will now close at midnight, the rule states.

The new law was passed by the Women's Student Government association a few days ago, independent of any suggestions or advice of the university officials. Dean of Women Esther A. Gaw, who enforces the rules for the women students, had no advance knowledge of the action of the association but gave her approval of the new rule.

The action was taken, the association officers state, to provide a uniform time for the female students to be in their rooming houses. The usual returning time for a co-ed on week-end nights has been 12 o'clock but in case the student was attending a dance, a special time allowance was given. By the old rule the women were to be in their rooms by 10 o'clock on week nights.

If the new rule is not repealed by university officials, Greek organizations on the campus are planning to start their dances an hour or so earlier than the usual time, so that the dancing period will be as long as before.

WOMEN AWAIT FREE COOKING SCHOOL HERE

Review-Tribune Lecturer Will Visit City Next Week.

FOUR-DAY EVENT
Classes Will Meet in Eagles' Hall, Broadway.

Satisfaction and approval has been expressed by a number of women's organizations over the announcement of the Free Cooking school which will open in the Eagles' auditorium next Tuesday to continue for four days. The school will be held under the auspices of Review-Tribune and will be directed by Mrs. Mary Brown Lowers, well known food and cookery lecturer who has conducted similar schools for a number of years.

Among the interested inquiries about next week's school was an anonymous letter from a bride who begged the lecturer to give at least one lecture on cake making and "show us new housekeepers just how a cake ought to be mixed so that it will be light and good when it comes from the oven." Mrs. Lowers has promised that the cake will be made and that recipes for cakes as well as many other kinds of cookery will be given out each day. The bride will be welcome every day of the four and with her the lecturer invites the experienced housekeepers of the East Liverpool district, the school girls, and all other women whether they do their own marketing and cooking or whether they supervise a maid who does their housework. The lectures planned will cover subjects of interest to every housewife, and the dishes cooked will be suitable for service in every home.

In one of the classes some new ideas for saving time in the kitchen will be demonstrated. Not only will new equipment for homemaking be shown in the kitchen which is being installed in the Eagles' hall, but new recipes will be given out; there will be daily demonstrations of cooking, and there will be a question and answer forum. Every woman is invited to attend and bring her housekeeping questions with her. "Speak out in meeting," the lecturer urges her listeners. She also advises the women to bring pencils and notebooks in order to jot down any questions which may occur as the lecturer is speaking and also to make note of the many new and interesting ideas on cookery and housekeeping which the lecturer will bring to East Liverpool.

A feature of one class will be a discussion of the home budget, how to plan a simple one and apply it to any home no matter what the income. Another feature of the school will be suggestions for home entertaining, how to plan parties, what to serve, and how to decorate the tables.

The audience is invited to come up on the platform and visit the kitchen after each lecture.

HURST'S SECONDS GOOD MATCH FOR E. PALESTINE HIGH, AVERS SCRIBE

EAST PALESTINE, Oct. 18.—For the second time this season, the Brown and White flag was forced to lower itself to the visitors. This time, though, they had a far better excuse than when Sebring beat them. At any rate, the East Liverpool high school football team whitewashed the plucky town boys, 37 to 0.

The Blue and White started the game with a furious aerial onslaught. Pass after pass netted them 5, 10, 10 and even 20 yards. By this method and a few line bucks mixed in, they walked down the field for a touchdown in the first few minutes of play. They succeeded in making the extra point.

Puts in Second Team.

After the Crocker City lads pushed the piskin over the goal line three more times, the East Liverpool second team was put into the fray. The second team and the Brown and White were a good match. Neither side gained much. During the third quarter the visitors didn't succeed in making a touchdown, although they were very near it once or twice but the E. P. H. S. line tightened and formed an impenetrable stone wall to the attack of the Pottery City second team.

First Team Goes in Again.

When the fourth quarter had just gotten under way, out rushed the Blue and White first team. At first the town boys held them fairly well. But toward the end Liverpool caught a punt and ran for a touchdown, the fifty one. As usual, the trial for extra point failed, as it did in every other touchdown except the first. Then again they ran the ball around end for forty yards for another touchdown. With the ball about 15 yards from the goal line the game ended.

It was purely East Liverpool's game. The locals were outclassed in nearly every point of the game. They completely surpassed and overwhelmed the locals with passes. The Liverpool team was much heavier than the Brown and White squad, which enabled them to tear gap after gap in the local line, which resulted in their numerous touchdowns.

Ernie Peters, Chicago flyweight, won from Henry Cullen, also of Chicago (8).

To Manage Tribe?

Roger Peckinpaugh, major league infielder of many years' standing, is being mentioned as the possible manager of the Cleveland Indians for 1928.

Grid Briefs

Bishops in Shape.

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 18.—With all first string players except Bresse, half-back, reporting for practice today, Ohio Wesleyan promises to hurl its full force against Denison Saturday. Tilton and Arbey, veteran tackles, were back at scrimmage tonight.

Bluffton Meets Toledo.

BLUFFTON, O., Oct. 18.—Bluffton College eleven went through heavy scrimmage practice today in preparation for the game next Saturday with Toledo University here on College field.

Concern is apparent in the Bluffton camp as to whether V. Conrad, Bluffton ace, will be sufficiently recovered from injuries sustained in last week's game against Cedarville to participate in the Toledo fray. Conrad, fullback, is nursing torn shoulder ligaments.

Xavier Has Scrimmage.

St. Xavier began preparations for the game with Ogeethorpe University on the home fields. Coach Meyer worked two full teams in scrimmage against the scrubs today.

Salem Facing Tough Battle With Warren

Springer's Team Improving After Three Defeats.

SALEM, Oct. 18.—Salem High's Big Red gridiron warriors, after a slight vacation over the week end, will get into their toes next Saturday when the Springersmen will go to Warren to battle with Sam Earich's charges.

Though they haven't won a game yet this season, the Salem eleven has been on the upgrade since the beginning, and ought to be going in a smooth manner when they hit Warren Harding.

Warren didn't do so bad Saturday, and Salem scouts brought home the news that the Red and Black will have a tough assignment this week. Warren, outplayed and apparently way off form in the first half, came back to clean up Ashtabula, 19 to 0, in the closing periods.

The team ran true to form as an Earich coached team goes. For who ever saw an Earich team which did not have something to pull on the opposition when everything seemed dark; when all hope was nearly lost.

Over at Struthers Sam brought football up to its present high standard there, and he always had a fighting team. His outfit last year was a pretty sweet bunch, though they were not good enough to whip Salem.

Sim would like to gain revenge for that defeat this coming Saturday and his Warren High lads will be filled with the spirit that wins games when the team takes the field against Salem. That makes the job of the Springersmen all the tougher, to say the least.

The rest period ought to have given the Red and Black crimples a chance to get on their feet again, and unless they get tripped up in the hard practice sessions which are on the program for every night this week, they ought to be in rosy shape for Saturday, as far as condition goes.

Coach Wilbur Springer and Assistant Coach Walt Wiffler are going to drill them chiefly in tackling and holding the ball. Fumbles have been numerous all year, and tackling has been far from the best. Then,

MEET CHICK SMITH'S TORONTO SQUAD HERE

Open Attack Planned for Jefferson Countians May be Kept in Bag if Present Weather Continues.

Having proved their capabilities on a dry field, Joe Hurst's high school proteges Saturday may have an opportunity to show their ability as mudhorses when they clash with "Chick" Smith's Toronto eleven at Patterson Field. As a result of intermittent rains the last week or so the west end lot has degenerated into a soggy, sticky mass of loam and may remain so unless a lot of dry weather appears on the scene very shortly.

The Blue has had one real workout in the mud and the squad, as a whole, appeared to handle the ball exceptionally well.

If the wet weather continues, it is possible Hurst will have to change his attack plans considerably and fans who did not see the East Palestine exhibition will be deprived of an opportunity to observe the team's flashy, open offensive Saturday.

New Pass Formation.

Hurst had contemplated working his squad in a new pass formation to night and may do so yet, but whether the team will have an opportunity to use it depends to a great extent on weather conditions Saturday.

The play was given to them last night, via blackboard. The coach had plenty of praise for the youngsters for their Saturday exhibition but did not fail, at the same time, to point out faults that developed here and there.

Felt was the only casualty from Saturday's scrimmage. He is reported to be suffering the effects of an injured shoulder which will probably come around all right by Saturday. Tackle Crawford will likely have to go another week or so before he gets back into the game, as a result of shoulder injury which is slow in healing.

Halfback Deems, too, will be forced to remain on the bench awaiting recovery of a twisted knee.

too, some new plays must be given to stop Warren rush offense which worked to good advantage against Ashtabula.

Toronto demonstrated it has a powerful offensive once it gets under way, in clicking off a 58-0 victory over Carrollton Saturday, the biggest score a Gem City team has run up in for a long time. Toronto's big red line beat back the Carrollton forwards consistently and the Smith backs cavorted through the openings for a flock of first downs, experiencing little trouble in gaining whenever and wherever they saw fit.

Kamra led the counting with three touchdowns, Shawwood two, and Keenan, Steele, Jones and Murray kicked in with one apiece.

However, the Torontoans have not been having things their own way all season. They lost a decision to Polansbee recently by something like four or five touchdowns, and Coach Hurst and his squad are confident they, too, can find a way of subduing the Red to a tame, delicate pink.

Wittenberg At Work.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 18.—Coach E. P. Godfrey today began preparations for the stiffest part of his Buckeye Athletic Association campaign when he set his men to work for the Ohio University game Saturday and the Miami set to a week later.

Jimmy Price, Massillon, regular quarterback, is expected to be ready for the Ohio game, having recovered from an injury to his back.

Godfrey will bear down on his forward pass artists following their poor showing against Ashland last Saturday. Plunging tactics won for Wittenberg after the aerial and end running attack failed.

"Watch Princeton" Is Slogan Heard On Eastern Gridirons

Manypenny Hits 290 Count in Duckpins

ATHENS, O., Oct. 18.—Ohio University's prospects for a victory over Wittenberg Saturday received a serious blow today when it was learned that McKinley, star halfback, will be out of this week's contest because of a bad shoulder injury suffered in the Marietta contest. McKinley was one of Ohio's most consistent ground gainers and dependable passer.

Roberson, veteran captain, who previous to the Marietta game had been out all season because of injuries, probably will take McKinley's place.

Yale's Stock Soars As Two Backs Return

Caldwell and Cox Will Play Against Army.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Yale's football stock soared to par today with the return to the lineup of two EH backfield stars, Bruce Caldwell and Duncan Cox. Both will play in the Yale-Army classic on Saturday.

The Bulldogs faced three hard days of scrimmage, beginning today. Special attention was paid to the first string substitutes, for Yale realizes that her varsity is not as strong as the Army first team and that the superiority of her subs over the Army seconds may be the deciding factor.

The West Pointers, however, are taking nothing for granted. Last year they trimmed Yale for the first time since 1912, and they are working hard to make it two straight next Saturday.

The injury jinx continues to pursue Penn. Paul Scull and Brill, backs, and Utz, guard, will be unable to play against Chicago on Saturday. The Chicago eleven is endeavoring to perfect a defense against Penn's "hidden ball" plays, which it failed to solve in last year's game.

Ray Barbuti, Syracuse captain, is injured and may not start against Penn State. It looks as if the strong Nittany Lions will cross the Syracuse goal line at Ardenbold stadium for the first time in history.

As a result of Ohio State's defeat by Northwestern, Princeton is no longer lashing itself into a lather over the game with the Buckeye outfit next month. The Cornell game on Saturday now assumes double importance, especially as Gil Dobie promises to upset the Tigers with several new plays.

Chicago's Joy Vanishes As Star Is Lost

Bluhm, Soph Quarterback Out of Game for Season.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Joy that followed Chicago's victory over the highly-touted Purdue eleven had given way to gloom today as injury and misfortune continued to dog the path of Stagg's Maroons in their preparations for the game with Pennsylvania here this Saturday.

The most heart-breaking setback to Stagg's hopes was the injury of Harold Bluhm, sophomore quarterback, who suffered a dislocated vertebra in his neck during yesterday's scrimmage practice. Just how bad Bluhm was hurt was not definitely established, but it is certain he will play no more football this season.

And Libby, half back, and Malcolm Proudfoot, regular tackle, are also on the injured list and will not be in Saturday's lineup against Penn. Stagg's whole team was pretty badly scared and bruised after the clash with Purdue's boiler-makers.

Northwestern, fresh from its triumph over Ohio State, is pointing for Saturday's game with Illinois. Both teams are unbeaten in the conference. The game will be played at Evanston.

Handley's crew emerged from the Buckeye melee with few injuries and should be going good this week-end.

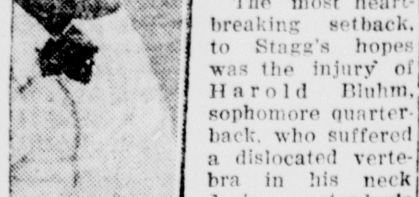

Little is known of Zuppke's 1927 squad. It has not yet been under conference fire. The Illinois and Northwestern have not met since 1923 when the downstaters won, 29 to 0. If Illinois can upset Handley's title-chasing machine, Zuppke's team will rate as one of the strongest in the Big Ten.

While the Illinois-Northwestern tilt and the Chicago-Penn inter-sectional clash will be the midwestern headlines this Saturday, other important games are scheduled between Michigan and Ohio State at Ann Arbor and Notre Dame and Indiana at Bloomington.

Other western conference games scheduled for Saturday are Minnesota-Iowa at Minneapolis and Purdue-Wisconsin at Madison.

Minnesota, with a pre-season rating as one of the most formidable teams in the conference, was disappointed in its first start against Indiana last Saturday. The Hoosiers held Joesting and his Gopher mates to a 14-14 tie.

The Purdue-Wisconsin game will be watched with interest to see what Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite, the man who built a championship machine at Northwestern last year, has been able to do with the erstwhile luckless Badgers. Purdue will be handicapped by the absence of Leon Hutton, star end, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in the game with Chicago.

ROPER'S GREEN CREW PACKING BIG THREAT

Tiger Mentor Likes 'em New, "They'll Listen to What You Tell Them"; Squad Going Slowly But Smoothly.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—"Watch Princeton" is the slogan that is sounding up and down the football gridirons these brisk October afternoons, for the Tigers, although the "Big Three" is no more, are launched on what may prove to be one of the most successful seasons an eleven from Old Nassau has enjoyed in many a long day.

Admittedly green and inexperienced, the Princetonians are playing a canny game this fall, sound on defense, conservative on offense but apparently always doing the right thing at the right time according to the approach of Roper's formula. There has been no effort by Roper and his two chief aides, Stan Keck and Al Witter to hurry the eleven along. Every stage in the development of the team has been planned carefully and there has been no attempt to lead the backs up with a mass of new plays in the early season contests. They have all been reserved for the big November battles, but just the same the Orange and Black is forging steadily along, using the simple and almost rudimentary formations but executing them with just as much exactness and precision as Knute Rockne demands of his "Fighting Irish."

Likes Them Green

Bill Roper confesses that he is at his best when coaching comparatively green men. "They'll do as you tell them," he said the other day, "and none of them have developed the complex that makes them feel that they know more than you do. That's the trouble with these all-veteran teams. They know it all and the coach knows nothing. Now this year's Princeton's team is a smart aggressive outfit."

"But it is just thirsty for football knowledge and drinks up everything you give them. What we're doing is to feed it to them slowly enough so as to avoid indigestion."

Of the team which trimmed both Harvard and Yale last season when Jake Slagle and Danny Caulkins were performing their magic before the Crimson and Blue, twelve men have been lost by graduation or ineffectuality, including the line from tackle to tackle and the two big scoring axes of the backfield. But with the exception of Slagle and Caulkins, Roper appears to have developed a team better and stronger, in every position than the 1926 eleven. At least present indications are that it will be a much more capable outfit when it reaches its mature strength a month hence. The new Princeton line compares favorably even now with some of the best the Tigers have ever had and the backfield is crowded with promising ball carriers, kickers and passers.

Ends No Problem

Roper was perhaps doubly fortunate in having left with him at the beginning of the season two such fine ends as Charlie Mooser and Newton Lawler. Without doubt this pair constitutes one of the best of wingmen in the east and there are able substitutes in Johnny Stinson, Morrison, Benedict and Renard. French and Barfield are a fine pair of tackles but they are being hard pressed to hold their berths against Whyte and Moore. The latter two and Barfield are all from last year's top-notch freshman eleven.

For the centre trio Roper has selected a powerful lot with Chuck Howe in the centre position and Caldwell and Blake at the guards. They were all substitutes on last year's eleven and are a scrappy, rangy outfit. And Roper has a second string trio in Villauer, Mann and Elbert that is not far short of the first string men in power and ability. This constitutes a big line which charges hard, fast and low and is showing better in every game it plays.

Backs Plentiful

It is in the backfield that Princeton has a veritable gold mine of high class material. Just to name a few there are Earl Baruch, Ed Witter, Jack Norman, Mile Miles, Phil Strabin, Jack Reardon, Graham Jones, and Horace Disston who were on the squad last season and Red Owen, Bill Scarlett, Dave Lowery and Dick Vogt of the 1926 freshman team. Baruch has the call at quarterback. He is a good field general and his excellent kicking ability more than offsets his defects as a runner. Reardon has second call on the job.

Ed Witter stands out as likely to carve a name for himself in Princeton hall of football fame. This young brother of a famous football family has all the makings of a backfield star. He is aggressive and clever when carrying the ball, changes pace and direction like a flash, and can plunge against the hardest and toughest kind of going without checking his speed. Likewise he seems immune to hard knocks.

Face Cornell Next

Owen was slated for one of the regular positions but so far this season his play has been just a little disappointing. He was a sensation at off tackle smashes as leader of the freshman last year and there is yet time for him to make his mark this year, with the backfield positions as open as they are. Lowery is a fine triple threat man, while Vogt and Scarlett are marvelous broken field runners, the former being especially shifty on his feet.

Princeton has plenty of tough opposition ahead in spite of the fact that Harvard is not on the schedule, but this alert, hard-fighting crew that Roper has rallied under the Orange and Black is apparently the kind of team that likes the going that way. Cornell is the Tigers' biggest opponent in a game to be played at Ithaca on Saturday which will be a real baptism of fire for the Princetonians. After Cornell comes William & Mary, Ohio State and Yale.

AT CANTON, O.—Tiger Flowers outpointed Joe Lohman, Toledo light heavyweight (10).

AT NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—Martin Burke, New Orleans heavyweight, kayoed Jamaica Kid, New York, in third round.

Cincy Drills for Marietta. CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—With the confidence renewed by their defensive game Saturday which held the Dayton Flyers to a 9 to 0 victory, the Cincinnati Bearcats set to work today to prepare for Marietta this week-end.

There was no denying that the Bearcats had something they had never possessed before, and it was no secret that the fans had expected Dayton to win about 50 to 0.

Cincinnati sport writers called it the best exhibition of football that the Bearcats ever had down — and around the University of Cincinnati a new air of optimism was noticeable regarding the prospects of the Bearcats who annually in the past have supplied practice games for the rest of the conference.

AT DAYTON.—Joe Sekyra, Dayton, knocked out Young Fisher, Syracuse, N. Y., in ninth round.

FARMERS DELAY ROBBERY REPORT

Nine days after some farm buildings had been robbed on the Cream Ridge road in Elkrun township, a delegation of farmers never reported the thefts to Sheriff George Wright until Monday. These farmers went before the county commissioners and petitioned that a reward be offered for the capture of the thieves. A reward of $25 was authorized. Poultry and automobile tires and other farm chattels were reported stolen during the night of Oct. 8.

Suit instituted. The Hamill & Gillespie Inc., through its counsel Ben L. Bennett of East Liverpool, has filed an action in court against the Colonial company, to recover a judgment for $1,700. The

YOUNGSTOWN MAN SEEKS DAMAGES

Declaring that as he alighted from his automobile at the filling station of H. F. Weathers and Arthur Weathers at Unity on Sept. 26, 1926, Howard R. Shoeler, Youngstown, in a petition just filed in common pleas court declares he was bitten by a vicious dog then harbored by the defendants. Shoeler declares that the dog tore his clothing, and a bill for $40 is filed as a part of the petition, and for the wounds he received he asks $2,000 damages.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

Arlean K. Wolf of Kensington, through her counsel, Edward P. Spidel of Alliance, has filed a petition for divorce in common pleas court against her husband, Earl Wolf, residing on an R. F. D. route out of Alliance, near the Fairmount school.

The petition charges the defendant with habitual drunkenness, gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. The couple were married at Lisbon July 31, 1920.

Sally's Shoulders

For, since she had started working for John Nye, she had been doing housework in the mornings and evenings—and this morning there was more work than usual.

She set the breakfast table for her father and mother. She filled the coffee-pot and set the electric toaster on the sideboard, with the bread beside it under a clean napkin. She made ham sandwiches and rolled them in a damp cloth in the ice-box.

"I'll bring home the things for supper tonight," she wrote on a slip of paper which she slid under the door of her mother's room. "So just get something cold for father's lunch. I've left some ham sandwiches in the ice-box. If you go to the hospital with father, please take Millie's clean nightgowns to her. They are wrapped up in a newspaper on the table in my room. I'll be home at 6:30. Sally."

But she was not at home at 6:30 that night.

For at 6 o'clock, just as she was leaving, John Nye poked his head in at the door of Mr. Peewee's little office and asked her to give him some extra time that night.

"I've a new salesman coming on in the morning, and I'd like to get some prospects lined up for him," he explained to her. "So if you could go over some lists that I've made I'd be very glad."

"Right away? Do you want me right away?" asked Sally, impudently breaking in upon his sentence. She was beginning to strip off her jacket when he answered her.

"Better go and get something to eat first," he advised her. "I've a couple of hours' work piled up in there. He jerked his head in the direction of his office."

"If I were Millie he'd be asking me out for something to eat," Sally thought, not bitterly, but with a kind of dull unhappiness. If she were blond and elegant and baby-faced he would not be treating her like an office machine instead of a flesh-and-blood girl who was in love with him.

"Not that I'd go with him, anyway. I wouldn't be disloyal to Millie," she told herself, as she crammed her hat down upon her hair once more.

"I'd ask you to go to dinner with me," John's voice surprised her, "but I had lunch late today and I'm not very hungry. So I thought I'd go right on with my work."

Sally went past him into the hall. "I'll be right back," she answered, with a tiny nod of her head. "In 15 minutes."

It was not until she reached the street, transformed by the lemon glow of October evening, that she remembered her mother and father at home, waiting for their supper.

She went into the first drug store that she came to and telephoned the flat. But there was no answer.

"They're probably still at the hospital," Sally decided, and hung up the receiver.

The drug store was one of those glorified shops that carry everything from aspirin tablets to sandwiches, served at a long, white counter.

Sally climbed up on one of the high stools and ordered a minced chicken sandwich. But when it came she could not eat. She was too filled with excitement, too eager to get back to John Nye's office.

And then, just as she was going out of the store, a happy thought struck her. She would take a couple of sandwiches to John Nye. He had said that he was "not very hungry," but with a man that meant, usually, that he was very hungry indeed.

"I'll take a salmon-salad sandwich and a Swiss cheese sandwich with me, if you'll wrap them up," said Sally to the white-aproned soda clerk, and carried them out with her into the hush of the downtown streets, always so quiet after the day's roar—as quiet, by comparison, as the hushed aisles of a great cathedral or a forest just before a storm. A quiet flat is like the soft sound of the great city breathing a sigh after its day's work.

The air was filled with the gray-violet twilight of autumn now, and the shop windows were already lighted. Now fall and winter clothes were on display in them—hats of velvet and satin and felt. Dresses of heavy silk and dark glossy cloth. Shoes that were little masterpieces of leather. All the thousand-and-one things that every woman—every woman, at least, who cares how she looks—longs for inexpressibly.

Sally longed for them. For all her up-and-comingness and her hard-working life, she was 20, and lovely to look at. And she was in love, besides.

In one window was the prettiest dress she had ever seen—a yellow taffeta, trimmed with little blue-velvet bows.

Sally looked first at it and then at the purse in her hand, in one pocket of it 10 one-dollar bills were stuffed—all she had left of her week's salary.

So much for dresses with blue bows," thought Sally, wistfully. "But I wish I had a new hat—tonight, especially."

Ham-hunger is a joy when there's Armour's STAR HAM

She couldn't help it. She couldn't help wishing to look nice for John Nye—even though he belonged to Millie, she couldn't help it. For after all, she was only human.

She pulled down her old hat over her star-like blue eyes and went on her way to him.

The salary recommendation, in which was included a parsonage allowance, was adopted by the conference, but was referred back to the committee on salaries equalization for a plan to be put into effect. A report will be made next year at the quadrennial session of the church to be held in Kansas City, Mo.

RED CROSS MEET IS SCHEDULED

Plans for Annual Roll Call Campaign Will be Discussed.

Plans for the eleventh annual Red Cross Roll call drive to open on Armistice Day, during which the organization will seek to enroll 5,000,000 members, will be discussed at a regional conference to be held at Clarksville on October 21. Forty-eight chapters of the Red Cross in West Virginia will be represented with about 200 delegates.

In setting the membership quota 2,000,000 in advance of the present enrollment, the Central Committee of the Red Cross, at the recent convention in Washington, stated that the revenues of the organization must be increased $1,000,000 a year if the domestic and foreign budget is to be maintained and disaster relief administered on a scale proportionate with average needs during the last five years. This increase in membership would satisfy this requirement since 50 cents out of each membership fee goes into the national treasury, the balance going for work in the chapters.

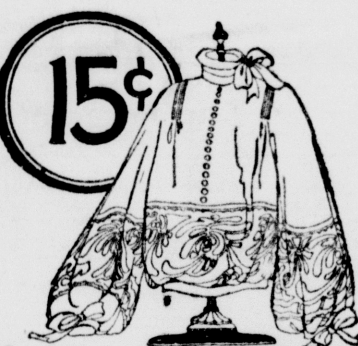

Both national and chapter officials of the Red Cross will address the meeting. Representing the headquarters staff at Washington will be Dr. William R. Redden, national medical officer, who had charge of the huge anti-disease program in the Mississippi Valley floods; Everett Dix, assistant to the manager of the Eastern area, and Miss Maude L. Lewis, assistant national director of the American Junior Red Cross.

Dix will have as the theme of his address, "This is a Red Cross Year." Miss Lewis will explain the value of the Junior Red Cross to the school and Dr. Redden will tell of Red Cross work in the flooded southland.

A. R. Kincaid, chairman of the Harrison county chapter, Clarksville, will preside at the morning session, opening at 10 o'clock, and Mrs. M. J. Bathbone, chairman of the Wood county chapter, Parkersburg, will preside in the afternoon. R. H. Rhawn, editor of the Clarksville "Exponent," will be one of the local speakers.

Masquerade Party Tonight. Masquerade party will be held tonight under the auspices of the Loyal Daughters class of the First Christian church in the home of Mrs. Neva Price, West Third street, East Liverpool.

Leaves for Synod Meeting. Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, left today for Weston where he will attend the meeting of the West Virginia Synod of the Presbyterian church.

Musical Comedy Hit Comes Here on October 26.

Directly following its widely heralded New York, Boston and Philadelphia engagements, the musical comedy sensation "Queen High," will be presented at the Ceramic theatre, October 26.

Much of the notable popularity of this delightful play is credited to its fresh story and the effective manner in which mirth, merriment, melody, pathos, fun and originality have been blended, while the musical songs with its brilliant scores are now popular in every nook and corner that boasts of a cafe orchestra. Among the many delightful song hits of "Queen High" are "Cross Your Heart," "Don't Forget," "Everything Will Happen for the Best," "You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby," "What a Weak About the Weaker Sex," "You'll Never Know," "See You, See I," "In the Spring," and many others.

The cast includes many well known names, with a score of singers, dancers and comedians of note. Chief among these are Eddie Garvie, Dave Mallen, Margaret Lee, Neil Collins, Carrie Glenn, Mary Marlyn, Georgette Arnold, Albert Downing, Danny O'Donnell, Arlyne White and Dorothy Dunn. There is a large chorus proclaimed as the most beautiful since the days of the famous "Floradora."

English girls are from six to nine pounds lighter, in proportion to height, than the girls of 40 years ago, according to recent statistics.

Hal Ludlow, English artist, has just finished a portrait of his mother who recently celebrated her one-hundredth birthday.

Melbourne, Australia, is raising a $25,000 fund to establish a permanent orchestra.
